cited for exhibiting "the highest characteristics of career Government service: competence, efficiency, character and continuity of service." We join in paying tribute to this group of good and faithful public servants.

Civil Honor Roll

Ten civil servants who have distinguished themselves by generally unpublicized but important contributions to the Government have received well-merited recognition for their work. In honoring the group of career civil service employees, the National Civil Service League has honored also the thousands of other dedicated careerists—men and women—who help to keep the Federal machinery in operation.

The honor roll for 1961 (the awards are made annually) is composed of the following outstanding employes: Manuel F. Cohen, director of the Division of Corporation Finance, Securities and Exchange Commission; Max Golden, general counsel of the Air Force; Clara B. Gonzales, reservation principal, Bureau of Indian Affairs; Fay W. Hunter, a regional director of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; John D. Jernegan, Ambassador to Iraq; Sherman Kent, assistant director, Central Intelligence Agency; Robert M. Macy, chief of the International Division, Bureau of the Budget; Ralph S. Roberts, management officer, State Department; Ralph G. H. Siu, Research and Engineering Division, Army Quartermaster General's Office; and Harry Wexler, director of the Office of Meteorological Research, Weather Bureau.

The recipients of the awards were
